CCCU Delivers Over $35 Million in Financial Benefits to Members

[LAS VEGAS, Nev.] – October 15, 2025 – Clark County Credit Union \(CCCU\) provided more than $35.4 million in direct financial benefits to its more than 55,000 members over the past 12 months, according to America's Credit Unions. Rooted in the "People Helping People" philosophy, credit unions like CCCU deliver value to members through lower loan rates, higher interest on deposit and reduced fees compared with traditional banks.

During this period, CCCU's members received an average of $3,218 in direct financial benefits per high-use household. For example, financing a $30,000 new vehicle for 60 months through CCCU can save members about $246 per year in interest compared with local banks - roughly $1,230 in savings over five years.

"Since 1951, CCCU has proudly served the Southern Nevada community by helping families and individuals strengthen their financial foundations, improve financial literacy, and gain the tools and guidance needed to achieve their financial goals and dreams," said Matt Kershaw, CEO of CCCU.

CCCU remains competitive by offering high-yield accounts, including a checking account paying 51 percent above the Las Vegas Metro average and a money market account returning 170 percent more than comparable local financial institutions, according to Datatrac (see www.CCCULV.org for the full details). The credit union also offers MedicareCU for Medicare planning, an Investment Center, free financial wellness workshops, and Banzai, a free financial education resource for all ages and financial needs.
